

Brand Guidelines

Big heads on a stick, built from your photos.

PREPARED FOR ADVERTISING & MEDIA PARTNERS · SEPTEMBER 2026 · V1

What we make

BigHead Builder turns any photo into a giant printed head on a stick. The customer uploads a picture, we cut the head out, print it at about 24" tall on rigid board, hand-assemble it and ship it flat to their door.

Who buys them

Sports crowds, race finish lines, tailgates, birthdays, bachelor and bachelorette parties, graduations, send-offs. Groups more often than individuals.

The feeling

Loud, warm and funny. This is a product people buy to make a friend laugh from fifty feet away. Never corporate, never ironic, never mean.

The promise

You see the exact cut-out before you pay. A person checks every head before it prints.

THE ONE-LINE POSITIONING

Turn any photo into a giant head on a stick. Upload a photo, we cut out the head, hand-assemble it, and ship it to your door.

Three marks, one family

All three are the same illustration. Pick by context, never redraw.

Sticker mark

Primary. The white keyline lets it sit on photography.

Badge

No keyline. Use on flat colour only.

Head only

Decorative. Never the sole identifier.

DO

- Keep clear space of at least half the badge's diameter on all sides.
- Minimum size 0.5" / 48px wide. Below that the curved lettering fills in.
- Use the supplied SVGs. They scale to billboard without redrawing.
- On busy photography, use the sticker mark so the keyline separates it.

DON'T

- Recolour it. The mark is berry, teal and cream — no mono or single-colour versions exist.
- Stretch, rotate, skew, add shadows, outlines or gradients.
- Put the badge on a busy photo without the sticker keyline.
- Set the wordmark in type. "Big Head Builder" inside the badge is drawn artwork.
- Use the head alone where the brand must be identified.

Space and size

Two numbers. Both exist because the mark stops working when they are ignored — it is a detailed illustration, not a wordmark.

Clear space

Keep a margin of at least half the badge's diameter clear on every side. Nothing — type, edges, other logos — inside the dashed line.

Minimum size

Below half an inch (48px) the curved lettering and the sunglasses fill in. If it has to go smaller than this, use the head mark and put the name in type beside it.

ON PHOTOGRAPHY

Over a photo, always use the sticker mark — its white keyline is what separates it from whatever is behind it. If the picture is busy enough that the keyline still is not enough, put the mark on a solid cream or ink panel instead of fighting the image.

Cream, berry, teal, ink

Cream is the ground, not white. It is what makes the brand feel warm rather than clinical — the single easiest thing to get wrong.

Cream

Cream

#FAF9EB · 250 249 235

Default background everywhere. Use instead of white.

Cream Deep

Cream Deep

#F1EEDA · 241 238 218

Panels and wells that need to sit back from cream.

Ink

Ink

#26343A · 38 52 58

All body copy. Also the dark-section background.

Berry

Berry

#B92A56 · 185 42 86

The accent. Headlines, links, emphasis. Use sparingly.

Berry Deep

Berry Deep

#932043 · 147 32 67

Pressed states and berry text on light grounds.

Teal

Teal

#2A7D72 · 42 125 114

Actions and confirmations. The “go” colour.

Teal Deep · #1E5F56

Small teal text and hover states. Use this, not Teal, below 14px — Teal on Cream is 4.64:1, which clears AA for body text but only just.

Proportion

Roughly 70% cream, 20% ink, 10% berry and teal combined. The accents work because they are rare. A berry-heavy layout reads as a sale flyer.

Accessibility. Every pairing in this system clears WCAG AA for body text: Ink on Cream 12.12:1, Berry Deep on Cream 7.84:1, Teal Deep on Cream 7.01:1, Berry on Cream 5.62:1, Cream on Ink 12.12:1. Values are measured, not estimated. For CMYK, convert from these RGB values with your printer’s profile rather than guessing a build.

Nunito does the work

Two families. Nunito for everything; Pacifico only inside the logo artwork and the rare display flourish. Both are free from Google Fonts, so the agency needs no licence.

DISPLAY	Ready to get big?	Nunito 900 · tight
HEADLINE	Turn any photo into a giant head	Nunito 900
SUBHEAD	Upload a photo, we do the rest	Nunito 800
BODY	Every head is printed and cut to order, then shipped flat with the stick alongside it.	Nunito 600
LABEL / EYEBROW	BIG HEADS ON A STICK	Nunito 900 · .16em
SCRIPT (LOGO ONLY)	Big Head Builder	Pacifico 400

RULES

- Body copy is 600 weight, not 400. The brand reads soft and heavy.
- Headlines are 900 with slightly negative tracking.
- Sentence case for headlines. Uppercase only for small eyebrow labels.

NEVER

- Set body copy in Pacifico. It is a logo face; it is unreadable in paragraphs.
- Substitute another rounded sans. Nunito is free — there is no reason to.
- Use Nunito 400 for anything but the lightest captions.

Short, warm, a bit daft

Write like a friend who is genuinely excited about the stupid thing they made you. Confident, plain and short. The product is funny, so the copy does not have to work at it.

Real lines from the site

“Your face. Getting big...”
“Giant heads on a stick, built from your photos.”
“Preview it BIG”
“Ready to get big?”
“Paying for the whole crew?”
“They scan, they save. You get the same back.”

Sentence shape

Most lines are under eight words. Verbs up front. Contractions always. One idea per sentence, then stop — the next line does the next idea.

SOUNDS LIKE US

- “Upload a photo. We’ll do the rest.”
- “Impossible to miss from the bleachers.”
- “See exactly what you’re getting before you pay.”
- Specific and concrete: 24 inches, ten seconds, eight to a box.

DOESN'T

- “Elevate your game-day experience.” — marketing voice.
- “Revolutionary AI-powered cutout technology.” — we don’t sell the machinery.
- Punching down, roasting, or anything at someone’s expense.
- Exclamation marks in every line. One is a joke; four is shouting.

NAMING

BigHead Builder — one word “BigHead”, capital B and H, space before Builder. A single product is a BigHead. Not “Big Head Builder”, not “Bighead”, not “BHB”. The drawn wordmark inside the logo sets it as three words — that is artwork, and it is the one exception.

Real crowds, real phones

Every photo we use is a real customer holding a real head. Nothing is staged in a studio and nothing is stock. That is the whole look — if it could be an advert for anything else, it is wrong.

LOOK FOR

- Daylight, outdoors, a crowd or a group.
- The head held up on its stick, at or above head height.
- Faces laughing, arms up, motion. Phone-camera texture is fine and wanted.
- Events: races, stands, tailgates, parties.

AVOID

- Studio lighting, seamless backdrops, product-on-white.
- Stock photography of any kind.
- Heavy filters or colour grades that fight the cream palette.
- A head lying flat on a table — it reads as a print, not a product.

Motion, if you make video

The brand has two signature movements, both already built: a squash-and-stretch bounce (1150ms, widest and shortest at the ground, perfectly round at the apex) and a gentle sway on the stick (2600ms, about three degrees, pivoting at the bottom of the stick as if held). Keep it small — a few degrees is a wave, ten is a seizure.

What ads may and may not say

These are the facts checkout will actually honour, as of September 2026. Everything here is enforced in code — if an ad promises otherwise, the customer finds out at the payment step.

FACT	SAY IT LIKE THIS
Price	$25 for the first print of a design; $17.50 for each extra copy of that same design (30% off).
The discount	Per design , not per order. Three different faces is $25 each — it is not a volume tier.
Shipping	Flat $5 per box . One box holds up to 8 heads , so eight ship for the same $5 as one.
Size	About 24 inches tall, roughly three times life size, on rigid lightweight board.
Assembly	Ships flat; the customer tapes the stick on with supplied 3M tape. About ten seconds .
Turnaround	Built in 1–2 business days , then 2–6 days in transit. US only.
Referral	Every order ships with a QR code. A friend scans it and saves 10% ; the referrer is refunded that same amount.

DO NOT CLAIM

- Free shipping. It was free until 10 September 2026. It is now $5 per box.
- Rush, express or guaranteed delivery. There is no expedited option at checkout and no date field. Customers with a hard date are told to get in touch first.
- Bulk or volume discounts — “5 for the crew”, “20 for the section”. The only discount is the per-design duplicate price.
- “Get 10% of your order back” for referrals. The referrer gets 10% of their friend’s order, not their own.
- International shipping. United States only at present.
- Accounts, logins or order history. There are none — orders are found by email.

If a price or policy changes, this page is the one to re-check. The live figures are held in a single file in the site codebase (lib/pricing.ts) and every page reads from it, so the site can be trusted as the current source of truth.

What you have been given

ASSET	NOTES
logo-sticker.svg	Primary mark with white keyline. Vector, scales to any size.
logo.svg	Badge without keyline. Flat backgrounds only.
head.svg	Head on a stick. Decorative use only.
social-card.jpg	1200×630 Open Graph image. Real customers, real event.
Photography	Real customer photos, cleared for use. Ask before sourcing anything else.
Nunito & Pacifico	Google Fonts. Free for commercial use, no licence needed.

Where the ads point

Landing page: bigheadbuilder.com
 Checkout: app.bigheadbuilder.com

Both hosts share one Meta pixel and one GA4 property on purpose: a visitor lands on the site and converts in the builder, so splitting them would cut the funnel in half.

Tracking already in place

The landing page fires PageView. Every conversion event — Lead, AddToCart, InitiateCheckout, AddPaymentInfo and Purchase — fires in the builder, where the funnel actually is. Purchase is deduplicated between browser and server. Please do not add a second pixel or a second GA4 tag without talking to us first.

QUESTIONS

Tyler Fouche · tyler@bigheadbuilder.com

If something in an ad concept is not covered here, ask rather than assume — particularly anything about price, delivery speed or what the referral programme pays out.